COMMENTS

1 – Note the population decline between the 1881 & 1901 censuses. This is significant and not just due to the interpretation of the census documents or "snapshot" character of the data. Presume there was a genuine decline due to migration within the UK and emigration to other countries.

2 – Note that in the 1901 census there were a total of 11 buildings shown as unoccupied in Bridge Row (inc Toll Bar was the entire row of houses. Where had all the people gone? In 1891, 32 people were recorded in 7 houses (plus 3 empty ones) in Bridge Row, and in 1881 there were 34 people in 8 houses (plus 3 empty ones) and no mention of a pub. In 1871 there were 10 empties and 10 houses held 33 people, & there had been a pub (Bridge Inn). The 1861 census listed 69 people in 11 houses (plus 3 empty ones) and in 1851 there were 59 in 11 houses plus one empty and in 1841 a total of 74 people were recorded in 13 houses (plus 3 uninhabited). Whatever the vagaries of census data interpretation might apply to these figures it is obvious that a pub existed at Bridge Row, to say nothing of the adjacent Toll bar, pub, smithy & the dwellings known as Bridge End & which was empty in 1901. Unfortunately, Subsequent census years are not accessible. Note that Bridge Row is (in 2008) still been inhabited within living memory and that the last time the Levens School admissions register records the address living at Bridge Row was April 1947 (Isabel Looker).
